

Beth, Parent

Common core has converted everything to difficult English my daughter has a diagnosed auditory processing problem and struggles with words . She is bright and used to do well in Math . Now Math has become English and she is struggling . All anyone cares about is where she is going to get the points to pass the regents and not what she is learning . It is sad that her teachers can not do the problems either