

Joyann Carroll, Teacher

I feel that although there is sound reasoning for commonality in standards across districts and states there are gaps in the common core and many standards that are not age/developmentally appropriate. I think grading teachers based on student test scores is an unfair snapshot and not a reliable indication of a teacher's job performance.