

Christopher Doktor, Teacher, NYSUT

Common Core is not working for most students. The rigor and speed in which the lessons need to be taught at are not conducive to learning. The amount of time spent per lesson is decreasing because of the amount of topics that need to be covered. The Common Core exams are also very tough and they are long. Students don't even put forth their best effort because they are already over tested.