"Common core math was very stressful to our children when they were in Grammar and Middle School. It was taught very quick paced and if they didn't catch on it was our problem to find a way to teach them. The only problem is nobody taught us. It actually really caused some kids get sick stomachs from their nerves. Life becomes stressful enough without the NYC school system stressing our kids over a new way of learning. We used the old system for years and it worked. Stop stressing our kids until they make themselves sick."
