

Stacy Falto, Parent

"I believe testing does not take into consideration children with learning disabilities. They are being tested among their peers who are not learning disabled. My sons scores are consistently below average and have been the since taking them in elementary school. I am seriously considering not permitting permitting him to take the ELA's this year. He is not being tested fairly to his needs."