

Sue Pernick, Teacher, Lancaster Central School District

The common core standards have taken away the soft, caring side of teaching that supports our children through their journey. All of us teaching the same way with no room for individuality takes away the human approach to reaching all students. Individualized instruction is a thing of the past. I am sure the common core will someday go away due to its lack of effectiveness.