

Gregory Tripp, Teacher, Lancaster schools

The overemphasis on using standardized tests as a measure of student and teacher performance is destroying public education. The test results are neither inaccurate nor reliable. The quality of learning and instruction cannot and should not be marginalized by reducing it to a number. Human beings are more than a "data point".