"I am a School social Worker and I work with the CTE students on the Bush Campus in Elmira, NY. I have to say that I am very concerned about the increase in anxiety issues and depression that I deal with at school right before test times, during, and after testing periods. Our kids are over tested. We now have to juggle trying to teach kids trades between taking pre and post tests (sometimes they take multiple tests due to having multiple teachers here and at home school), core standards, Regents, and their regular mid-terms and finals. All these happen at the same time twice per year. Mid-terms and finals. Is there any double that any of us would be stressed with all of this to deal with? What are we doing to kids today? Let's stop this. It really isn't right or fair and our youth deserve better from us. Drop out rates are increasing. State Ed. needs to fix these problems as well as the one diploma fits all issue. Enough is enough."
