I find it difficult to weigh in on the Common Core because it is hard to know what aspect of the curriculum to attribute to the Common Core. I do believe there has been too much emphasis on testing; however, I did not choose to opt out of testing this year as I found the complaints about the testing to be excessive. My son did not find the math testing and ELA testing to be a "big deal." I do wish the testing could be streamlined however, I found the response of the public verging on hysteria.
