

Jason Cring, Teacher

I believe the complexity of the texts on the ELA regents exam is too high for the average 11th grader to access. I liked the complexity of the texts on the old NYS Regents exam and feel the current exam punishes students who are not good readers. The old exam had a good balance of reading, writing and listening. I would like to see a listening section come back. The old exam lacked a good evidence based section, which the new exam has. Please lower the text complexity, and add a listening section.