

Joel Chapman

"We need to keep NY state standards high and continue to set the bar high on what our students can accomplish. Lowering the standards sends the message to students that they aren't capable of tackling tougher standards which puts them in a tough position when they enter college and beyond."