

Daniel Edholm, Teacher, East Aurora Schools

The common core standards are not a bad thing. No teacher minds higher standards/expectations. The fact that the tests are so high stakes and tied to teacher evaluations are a joke. The modules are not well-written and need to be revamped. The common core was rolled out to quick. The plane was flying before it was fully built, so to speak.