

Bonnie Edwards, Parent

"The teachers were unprepared to teach common core. My Daughter being a junoir has had a very bad conversion from old to new standards. There are no books available to my daughter or I to learn the system that was not taught in class. I don't understand saying the common core is teaching the different ways that students learn because all students learn differently. The you require the students to demonstrate knowledge of all of the different methods instead of letting them do the system that works for them. You are failing the first couple of years of students since the have not gotten the education they need to learn the system that was suppose to start at grade school and not change midstream."