

Enough is Enough

The Enough is Enough initiative resulted in a sweeping new law passed in June 2015 that will combat sexual assault on all New York college and university campuses.

New York is a national leader in the fight against sexual assault on college campuses

To learn more about your rights and Governor Andrew M. Cuomo's Enough is Enough initiative, visit <http://on.ny.gov/EnoughIsEnough>

Cut off and keep this card in your wallet:

Enough is Enough

To report a sexual assault: contact State Police 24-hour hotline 1-844-845-7269, dial 911, call Campus Security or Local Police

_____
(Write local police phone # here)

_____
(Write local campus safety phone # here)

The new law combats sexual assault on college campuses by creating:

- Statewide definition of affirmative consent, defining consent as a knowing, voluntary, and mutual decision among all participants to engage in sexual activity;
- Statewide amnesty policy encouraging students to report incidents of sexual assault or other sexual violence by granting immunity for certain campus policy violations, such as drug and alcohol use;
- Students' Bill of Rights, which campuses will be required to distribute to all students, informing sexual violence victims of their legal rights and available resources;
- Comprehensive training requirement for administrators, staff, and students, including at new student orientations;
- Requirement for campuses to annually submit incidents of reported sexual violence to the State Education Department to be made publicly available on their website;
- New sexual assault victims unit within the State Police, specializing in response to sexual assaults and related crimes and training local law enforcement; and
- Requirement for first responders to notify survivors of their right to contact outside law enforcement.

Keep the card or give it to a friend

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS

- You have the right/choice to make a report to university police or campus security, local law enforcement, and/or state police;
- You have the right to report the incident to your institution, to be protected by the institution from retaliation for reporting an incident; and
- You have the right to receive assistance and resources from your institution

NYS Domestic and Sexual Violence Hotline
1-800-942-6906