

Melissa Kamyab, Teacher, Lancaster Middle School

As a teacher and a parent, I am not against the CC standards overall. I feel there is a lot of value in the standards, but I am completely against the current structure of the math and ELA CC assessments. These tests have no value to parents and students, and as a teacher they are not a valid measure of performance since so many other factors go into student progress. They are also unbelievable lengthy for a test that has very little value.
