

Michael Kelly, Parent

The notion of a set of meaningful standards applicable to all students in all parts of the country is absurd. They didn't name it COMMON Core for nothing as it will reduce, not improve, academic achievement. Teachers will be mutated into "facilitators" whose performance is judged by the results of students taking a test for which they are improperly prepared. Records on every type student behavior will be kept in centralized databases for reasons that can't be justified. I urge this panel to reject Common Core entirely and regain control of public education.