

Kim Lapple, Administrator, Byram Hills School District

"There is value in the Common Core Standards. There is no value in linking the state tests of the Common Core to teacher scores/evaluations. This practice is destructive to education and there are numerous studies that show that this is true. Allow educators to use the state tests to improve our curriculum, our practice and how we support our students, without the threat of the impacting teachers rating. We should be accountable - without the link to state tests."
