"I am a parent of a child who is a victim of NYC Public school. We have been used as a test subject for the K-8 years. We have had Everyday Math , Envision Math and Common Core Math . Which is the correct form that we should learn ? We have re-learned math every couple of years only to be bombarded with new ridiculous testing unlearning what we had already mastered. Common core is stressful for the average child let alone a struggling student. Parents feel tied in knots watching children struggle , cry and doubt themselves. Why are you do this ? The makers of common core are businessmen not teachers! They are making money off our children ! It is a shame that we are hurting them this way."
