

Deb Muhlbauer, Teacher, LCTA

Common Core was poorly implemented and the students are suffering. Never in my career have I seen such a high level of anxiety amongst the high school students who have to take the common core math exam. We are teaching to a test, with a script...this is not good for the students or the teaching profession. While I agree all states should be aligned to a common curriculum, this process was poorly done and not benefiting anyone. Stop Common Core and have teachers part of developing the curriculum.