

Katherine Mustello, Parent, Rhinebeck Central School

My child's year is the first to do common core. The math has been particularly problematic. From the slow rollout of the modules to the drastic changes in what material is covered. While I feel the teachers are doing their best I think the transition has been a mess and I see no improvement in curriculum to justify the changes.