

Michael McGlynn, Parent

"I think the common core standards need to be a component of a comprehensive education plan for every student, similar to the individual education plans for individuals with disabilities.

The use of the common core standards within the student's comprehensive education plan will provide the student, parents, teachers, counselor, and superintendent to develop curriculum for the student.

In addition, the use of the common core standards within the comprehensive education plans will establish a base line for a holistic education for all students.

The NYS School Counselors Association in 2014 recommended the comprehensive education plan for all students."