

Lori Piotrowski, Teacher, Lancaster High School

I feel evaluating a teacher based on their student's scores is similar to trying to predict how much snow will fall this year. There are many outside circumstances besides just what happens in the classroom in order for a student to succeed or fail. This whole setting a student learning objective and then holding the teacher accountable is simply ridiculous. You are asking us to be fortune tellers and also requiring us to teach to a test.