

Kristin Stallman, Parent

Put the fun and creativity back in learning for our children. The common core implementation and the test regime have sucked the life out of both students and teachers...just look around. If we want our students to be ready for the future and be true competitors in the world don't stifle their creativity let it thrive. Their teachers went to school to be able to tap into their abilities, stop the over testing and reliance on tests. Let creativity flow.