

Ronnie Siegel, Parent

"Learning standards are not consistent with teaching methods/materials. Teachers do not understand how to teach the material so that the students are ready for the math regents. There is no text book for students to use as supplementary material and the teachers don't have enough understanding, themselves, as to how to prepare the students adequately for the test. In the end, the students are losing. Implementation was too hasty. The students are being used in a political scuffle."