

Michelle Spiniello, Parent

"I have been dealing with the common core for 2 years now. It is confusing for children. There are too many topics taught too many different ways and it makes it hard for kids to understand. My children don't even like their math classes, which breaks my heart because I am a statistician. My son gets math questions wrong because they are not straight forward and worded to trick the reader. It has lowered his confidence in math tremendously. I feel that I have to re-teach everything at home."
