

Karen Teichmann, Parent

The Common Core and high stakes testing is creating a whole generation of students who no longer will be able to enjoy being a life long learner. Students are stressed, teachers are stressed and we parents are also stressed. But more importantly I am worried that in ten years when our kids are in college the true ramifications of this flawed system of education will be shown and then it will be too late...