

Michele Weintraub, Parent, Ardsley village parent and NYC teacher

"Let the educators run the schools Education is more than a business. We are dealing with children. There are too many state tests that teachers need to prepare students for instead of letting them just teach. I'm very pleased Prentice Hall is no longer writing the exam questions.

I'm a product of the NYC public school system. There wasn't anything so wrong with the system. New changes still come back to former ways of teaching

Public education has always worked. The teachers worked very hard. Look at the administrators instead leading these schools with so little teaching experience or poor track records"